NASCAR and American Ethanol Bring Cleaner Miles to Kentucky Another Year

Once again, all the vehicles racing at Kentucky Speedway for the NASCAR Cup series events will be fueled with Sunoco Green 15, a gasoline blended with 15% American, corn-based ethanol. This is the third year NASCAR has been using the fuel in its races. The NASCAR - American Ethanol partnership is supported by Kentucky Corn Growers Association to share the benefits of American ethanol with NASCAR's 75 million fans.

Demand Grows for Auto Technicians, Industry Already Feeling Pinched

Demand for automotive and diesel technicians is expected to grow in the coming years as the economy recovers, but with a dearth of qualified candidates to fill the growing demand, the industry already is feeling a pinch. In the next five years, the U.S. Department of Labor projects there will be more than 1.2 million jobs in the collision, automotive, motorcycle and marine industries. With vehicles lasting longer on the road and a slew of aging technicians headed to retirement, the industry is scrambling to educate the public about the opportunities in the industry.
