

Clean Fuels and Technology News

Clean Energy LNG Site Nears Completion in Indianapolis

In Indianapolis, Flying J is near completion of a liquified natural gas fueling station. This site will be 1st LNG public fueling station open in Indiana, the 5th LNG site east of the Mississippi River, and the 31st in the United States. The site is located at 1720 West Thompson Rd Indianapolis, IN.

John Wright Elected to National Biodiesel Board's Governing Board

This month the National Biodiesel Board members selected their trade association leadership, electing three returning governing board members and four new members to serve on the leadership committee to lead America's advanced biofuel. John Wright of Owensboro Grain Company was elected to the Governing Board.

Based in Jefferson City, Mo., the National Biodiesel Board is dedicated to supporting the commercial biodiesel industry. Its membership is comprised of biodiesel producers, state, national, and international feedstock and processor organizations; fuel marketers and distributors; and technology providers.

Duke Energy Revamping Batteries

Duke Energy, partnering with General Motors and power technology company ABB, will test whether used electric-vehicle batteries can find new purpose on the electric grid. Lithium-ion batteries often have 70 percent or more of their useful life when they're no longer usable in electric vehicles, GM says. In San Francisco, a demonstration showed five used Chevrolet Volt battery packs repackaged into a unit that could power three to five average homes for two hours.

GM and ABB began work two years ago on ways to reuse their energy storage.

Where is the VOLT???

Last newsletter's "Where is the Volt" answers were Murray State University Stadium and the Parthanon in Nashville, TN.

Our winners were...

1st place-- Tracey Thurman

2nd place-- Gerald White

3rd place-- Cynthia Lee

THIS NEWSLETTER WILL HAVE TWO "Where is the Volt" pictures!!

*Can you guess??
Where is the VOLT??*

The first person to guess correctly wins!!

Email your response to kycleanfuels@insightbb.com

KCFC News is a newsletter for KCFC members and interested parties.

If you have a news item you would like to share, please send it to kycleanfuels@insightbb.com.

For more clean fuel news and resources, visit

www.kentuckycleanfuels.org